Chapter 372: The Fall of the Chaos Monarchs' Subjects

With the awakening of the Chaos Monarchs' Subjects from the Chaos World, the multiverse had been thrown into a state of instability. The very fabric of reality trembled as the powerful entities stirred, their ancient might threatening to disrupt everything Sung Jin-Woo had worked so hard to build. The True Absolute One, however, was not one to be easily swayed by such threats. His dominion over the multiverse was absolute, and he would see that it remained unchallenged.

Knowing the magnitude of the danger at hand, Sung Jin-Woo summoned two of his most trusted archangels—Gabriel and Azrael. These two, with their immense power and unwavering loyalty, were his first line of defense against the chaos brewing in the realms. Gabriel, the captain of the battle angels, and Azrael, the vanguard of his army, were tasked with eliminating the rising threat before it could spread any further.

Gabriel, with his 600 wings, commanded a vast army of angels, each imbued with the divine power of Sung Jin-Woo. Azrael, his counterpart, wielded the strength of the dark archangels, his black wings gleaming with the flames of darkness. Together, they were a formidable force—united in purpose and devoted to their creator.

As the two archangels entered the Chaos World, their presence alone was enough to stir ripples through the very core of the realm. The Chaos Monarchs' Subjects, the servants of the chaotic forces, had been waiting for an opportunity to strike, but they were met with an overwhelming force unlike anything they had ever encountered.

Gabriel's army clashed with the Chaos Monarchs' Subjects, who were powerful in their own right, but no match for the celestial might brought to bear by Sung Jin-Woo’s angels. The battle raged across the chaotic landscapes of the realm, each strike from Gabriel's angels obliterating the forces of chaos. Azrael, wielding the dark flames of the abyss, swept through the battlefield, reducing entire legions of chaotic beings to nothingness.

The Chaos Monarchs' Subjects fought back with everything they had, using their dark powers to warp reality itself, but they were no match for the precision and power of the archangels. Gabriel’s mastery over light and Azrael’s control over darkness created a perfect balance, and together they tore through the opposition, leaving devastation in their wake.

It wasn’t long before the Chaos Monarchs' Subjects were completely overwhelmed. Their forces scattered, and their leaders were forced to retreat into the very depths of the Chaos World, where they would attempt to regroup. However, Gabriel and Azrael had already sealed their escape routes, trapping them within the confines of the realm.

The True Absolute One, ever vigilant and aware of the power dynamics at play, watched from his throne as his archangels carried out their mission. He knew that the destruction of the Chaos Monarchs' Subjects was not the end, but a temporary reprieve. The Chaos Monarchs were not easily defeated, and they would undoubtedly find new ways to challenge his rule. But for now, Gabriel and Azrael had succeeded in eliminating the immediate threat, restoring a fragile peace to the multiverse.

As the battle subsided, Gabriel and Azrael stood victorious, their armies standing guard over the now-quiet Chaos World. They had fulfilled their duty to Sung Jin-Woo, proving their unwavering loyalty and strength. Their presence would ensure that no further threats would emerge from the Chaos World without them being prepared.

Sung Jin-Woo, sensing the balance had been restored for the moment, allowed himself a brief moment of respite. But his mind was already turning toward the future. The Chaos Monarchs were still out there, plotting, waiting for the right moment to strike. And as the True Absolute One, it was his responsibility to ensure that such threats never again reached the scale they had before.

For now, however, the Chaos Monarchs' Subjects had been defeated, and the multiverse remained safe under the watchful gaze of the True Absolute One and his mighty archangels.
